STUDY GUIDE – FILM 270 The exam will have three parts:

1) Multiple choice – drawn from lectures, readings, screenings and clips in class. 2) ID's – drawn from the same as above, will be a "best" of 10 items from which you can select 5. For each of these 5 answers, you will draw the term and then give an example of its specific significance for an instance in a concept we discussed in class and/or read about in the book. 3) Essay(s) – you will most likely have a choice here as well. Each question will ask you to draw one or more of the five films we have watched and illustrate the concepts we have learned in class. The five films are: Citizen Kane, The Right Thing to Do, Apocalypse Now, Psycho and Close Encounters of the Third Kind. I suggest watching these five films, screening the episodes, movies and clips which you watched them for the film, and thinking about them how they relate to the exam. The best essays will go beyond just the responses we considered when we discussed them together. I'm particularly fond of comparative essays, by the way.

Here is a list of terms that are fair game for all three sections, but particularly for the ID's (the list WILL be drawn from these terms):

FILM FORM

Functions: how something operates within an organic whole: what function each part serves, what is its role in the whole?

- i.e. Taxi is a visual contrast with Techicolor and bridge between the two worlds

Motivations: why something is put into the film. Hollywood likes clear motivation

- i.e. movies are meant to be like the real world, so the sound of traffic, ambient noise and things like clapping hands create a sense of realism
- i.e. The Birds sleeping outside because it's a horror film about conviction
- i.e. Henry Foster world building
- i.e. Wagon of Dr. Tarr is there to build a bridge between two worlds and Mr. Galt's costume symbolizes that of the world

Mood: (generally) repeated pattern that can be in any element of film style

- i.e. Star Wars "Imperial March" music used, space opera, songs that signify how the characters fit

Repetition: like motifs on any level

- Can be within dialogue, color, music etc.
- i.e. scene where the Tin Man, Lion and Scarecrow and flipped in spots from the scene when they were introduced

Variation: change, the opposite of repetition

- i.e. the brightness of the yellow brick road in contrast with the darkness of the witch's tower

Similarity / Differences: self explanatory, elements of repetition and variation
